You are your child’s first and most influential teacher. Enjoy the opportunity!

When the window closes, windows of opportunity are rare. They are connections for those abilities that may be missed. Do not close them.

When the window opens, you can observe your baby. You can have a golden opportunity to help your child’s brain develop. Connections between brain cells are not formed at random. Your child adds them as she grows. Watches what goes on around her, and gets actively involved in her world.

Helping Your Child’s Brain During Sensitive Periods

Growing abilities: Describe some of your child’s interests.

What is your baby very, very interested in?

Take time to watch your child.

Reflection

Child development

What are you noticing about your baby’s development right now?

During these times, there are called windows of opportunity. These are called windows of opportunity for learning. When your child’s brain is all right, there are experiences for different parts of your child’s brain. Vision, hearing, language, movement.

How to tell when a window is open:

Most windows of opportunity begin very early. By observing your baby, you can learn a lot about how she is developing.